

Argent, a stag's head caboshed, and on a chief sable, two roses gules each charged with another barbed and seeded proper.

The stag's head originates from the Arms of the family of Stanley. The School is in Stanley Park Road, and the Stanleys, earls of Derby, had a hunting lodge at The Oaks, Carshalton, part of which still stands.

The two Tudor roses derive from the Arms of the old Borough of Beddington and Wallington and commemorate visits paid to Beddington by Henry VIII and Queen Elizabeth I in the 16th century.

Thus the principal areas of the homes of the boys are indicated.

The motto means "Learn in order to work".
